

It's almost like a rite of passage - the overland trip from London to South Africa. If not intrepid, Linnea Cooper is at the very least adventurous, having left London on January 4, 2007 with her husband, destination Durban. En route they discovered this paradisaical beach at Ada, a little over an hour east of Accra. With the sea-breeze tickling the palms, the estuary of the Volta River on one side and the Gulf of Guinea on the other, it certainly was a pleasant surprise.

